Jerry Angelich,
Narbonne Grad,
Killed In Action

Jerry Angelich died at Hickam Field, Dec. 7, 1941, from wounds received while serving as a gunner with the U.S. Army Air Corps. There will be a gold star on the Narbonne Honor Roll and a lump in many hearts, for Jerry was a baseball hero when he graduated there in 1934.

He played with the Sacramento ball team after graduation.

JERRY ANGELICH
... first Lomita gold star ... and won considerable recognition. Later he was employed by the Griffith Co. as an operating engineer until last August when he enlisted. In the Army he made the same fine record he had at school. His sister, Mrs. Militta Christophersen, will cherish as long as she lives the letters from his superior officers and comrades who wrote her telling of his bravery on that day of treachery.

Memorial services were held by the family and close friends Feb. 8 in the Los Angeles Serbian church.

Jerry's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Angelich, are both deceased, his mother some years ago, his father in 1930. He leaves two sisters, Mrs. Militta Christophersen, 1036 W. Dolores, Wilmington, with whom he lived, and Mrs. Darinka Carey; two brothers, Paul and Sam, and a stepmother, Mrs. B. M. Angelich. Born on Feb. 18, 1916, in Butte, Mont., attending school in Wilmington, graduating from Narbonne at 18, and giving his life for his country in his 25th year; the brief story of a hero whose name shall live forever as the first sacrifice of Lomita in this war.

Use of Gas Held
Futile in Present
Type of Warfare

LOS ANGELES.—The use of gas in the present war is not a very imminent possibility, despite the large stores of mustard gas which Germany and England are known to have prepared, according to Captain W. A. Bush, Royal Engineers, retired. Neither country dares to start, he says.

American shores are fairly immune, because of the futility of attempting an attack by gas over large territory, in the opinion of Captain Bush. Gas in World War I, he says, was a defensive weapon, providing for retreat but not advance over terrain where the gas had been used. It was rather for trench warfare than the mobile campaigns of the present war, and remains too expensive for effective use over an expanse of many miles.

SECOND LIEUTENANT GEORGE S. WELCH
U. S. Army (Air Corps)

MAJOR
EMMETT O'DONNELL, JR.
U. S. Army (Air Corps)

Even before that fateful December seventh, Lieutenant George Welch liked guns. He was practicing ground gunnery early that morning. When the first Jap bomb blasted Wheeler Field, it was ten miles to Hialeah, where his own squadron was stationed. With Ken Taylor, another Army pilot, he dove it in six minutes, with Jap planes strafing their ear.

There were fourteen Japs above Legaspi in the Philippines—until they met "Rosie" O'Donnell. When the big Air Corps bomber came out of the clouds, O'Donnell was at the controls. Twelve miles ahead, offshore, lay the target—four Jap transports. Twelve miles—and fighter swarming in, guns blazing.

At Hialeah, he took off with Taylor, zooming behind him. Twelve enemy dive-bombers swept in over Dahu, a thousand feet below Welch and his comrade. Welch dove, Jap tracers all but boxing him in. His heavier guns were dead, but he cut in the 30 caliber, swung onto the nearest dive-bomber. In a single burst, he killed the gunner, dropped the plane out of control.

With one gun jammed, he pulled into the clouds. Reversing his course, he dove back, shot a fleeing Jap plane down into the sea. By now his gun belt was empty and he raced back to reload at Hialeah.

As he took off again, fifteen Jap planes came after them. Seeing Taylor trapped, Welch charged into the Jap formation. Taylor's attacker went down in flames. Another dive-bomber was fleeing upward when Welch caught it with the last of his bullets.

The remaining Japs sheered off. O'Donnell swung back to his target through a storm of antiaircraft fire. The bombs flashed down. Two direct hits on crowded transports, then back through another attack. A fourth fighter fell to pilot-crew teamwork, before a perilous landing on bullet-cashed tines.

Nine Basic Rules of Eating Laid Down for Public

BERKELEY.—Nine basic rules for eating well and keeping fit have been laid down for Californians by the State Nutrition Committee.

In the first place, said the committee, drink milk—a pint a day for the average adult and a quart for every child, or nursing or expectant mother. That will provide calcium, vitamin A, protein, and some of the B vitamins. Supplement this with a generous serving of oranges, grapefruit, tomatoes, green cabbage, or some other raw salad greens to get vitamin C.

Every day should also see on the menu, according to the committee, one or more servings of cooked, leafy green vegetables or a yellow vegetable such as carrots. That will provide vitamin A, vitamin B, and protein besides.

To top it all off, adds the committee, serve two or more servings of some other vegetable or fruit; one or more servings of lean meat, fish or poultry; some cooked cereal for breakfast and whole wheat bread at all meals; plenty of butter on your bread; and four to six glasses of water daily. If you're still hungry, says the report, eat anything you want; you have what you need.
